ANNOUNCEMENT

WORKSHOP IARW 2014

"Interpretation of MIC and Expertise in Reporting AST Result"

Intercontinental Mid Plaza Hotel, Jakarta, Indonesia

November 28th, 2014

Dear participants,

Antimicrobial Susceptibility Test (AST) is one of essential microbiology tests to determine definitive therapy for patient with infections. From the test, we could measure and determine the value of minimum inhibitory concentration (MIC) for each antibiotics panel tested. The MIC value is important to choose which antibiotics classified as susceptible, intermediate, or resistant category. Furthermore, as Clinical Microbiologist, we should improve our ability to interpret the MIC results and also provide our expertise in order to help clinicians to choose appropriate antibiotics to treat their patients.

We believe this workshop is beneficial for all of us.

Regards,

Anis Karuniawati, MD, PhD
Chairman
